

Before WWII there
were not a lot of jobs
and people didn't have a lot of money
because of the depression.

Not a lot of kids went
to Short Pump School, probably because they dropped out to help
their families.

With less students at the school, there were less teachers so 7th graders had to go to another school.